PRESS STATEMENT - 3RD JULY, 1970.

FROM: PREMIER (MR. DUNSTAN).

SUBJECT: MATS

The Premier (Mr. Dunstan) today repudiated claims that he had gone back on his word with regard to freeway development in Adelaide.

He said he had never promised that if elected, no freeways would be built.

"In the ALP policy speech I said a Labor Government would withdraw and revise the Metropolitan Adelaide Transportation Study although freeways from north to south, to Tea Tree Gully, to Port Adelaide and Glenelg would be necessary.

"However, I pointed out that Labor would not allow the massive system of elevated freeways proposed in the MATS Report.

"The adoption of such a scheme would simply destroy Adelaide's character, which would be tragic."

Mr. Dunstan said the MATS proposals would be re-examined by the State Planning Authority assisted by a team of investigators experienced in the new technologies of public urban transit.

"They will advise firstly on how these inner technologies can best be incorporated into the development of Adelaide and secondly how they can provide a new basis for industry.

"We have all the technologies and all the industries necessary to make Adelaide the cheapest urban centre in the world in which to experiment with, and produce economically, forms of flexible public transit which are designed to end jammed-up cities and heavy air pollution."
